The scheme is an extensive program for the awareness in MSME on ZED Scheme for manufacturing sector to motivate them for ZED Scheme. The scheme leads to reduction in wastage, increasing productivity, expanding their market and develop new products and processes. In the program the resource person Mr. Sushil Sharma was invited by the UCCI to brief the delegates on quality and environment parameters by the Quality Council of India.

In the inaugural address, Prof Dr K N Sheth said that Zero defect focuses on CUSTOMER- it states that there should be zero non-compliance and zero waste whereas Zero effect focuses on SOCIETY- It states that there should be zero air pollution, zero liquid discharges, zero solid waste and zero wastage of natural resources. In other words, we should manufacture the goods in such a way that they carry zero defect and that our exported goods are never returned to us and we should manufacture the goods with zero effect so that they should not have a negative impact on environment. Thus ZED scheme focuses on – Safety, Health and the Environment.

There are 50 parameters including technology, fuel usage, and waste disposal system and manpower skilling. It has been proposed by Quality Council of India that training and awareness for SMEs should be conducted by Chamber of Commerce & Industries and other partners. Geetanjali Institute of Technical Studies would like to join UCCI to be the part of ecosystem for ZED certification.

Product quality (Process design for quality & product design for quality- pre construction and post construction), Emission, effluent and waste disposal activities (Process design for environment control) and resource management (Human resources, innovation and creativity and such other Parameters are actually part of academics and with UCCI GITS would like to associate.

Dr Sheth stated further to industrial and academic delegates that zero defects has higher performance standard as no defects are acceptable whereas in six sigma few defects are acceptable.
